RACE IS SOCIALLY CONSTRUCTED

- Race: category of people labeled and treated as similar because of some common biological traits, such as skin color, texture of hair, and shape of eyes (p. 379)
- These traits are culturally determined
- Race has no “scientific” basis, e.g., DNA
- Biological variability exists, but doesn’t conform to our “race” categories; racial characteristics aren’t transmitted as complexes
- Race was invented in the 18th Century
- Race and racism have always been connected

SOME RACIAL TAXONOMIES

- The ancients: us vs. “barbarians”
- Linnaeus’ taxonomy
- Nazis: important distinction was Aryan vs. Jew
- South African apartheid: four categories (white, black, colored, Indian)
- Brazil: wider range of fluid skin color designations
- United States
  - Most important distinction historically has been white vs. non-white
  - U.S. officially recognizes fives races plus “other,” and multiple race combinations

The U.S. racial system has focused on the white-nonwhite dichotomy
- The one drop rule: one drop of black blood (i.e., any percentage of ancestry) makes someone black
- Until 1967, many states had laws against miscegenation (marriage or sexual relations between a man & a woman of different races)
- People and groups move from one racial category to another
  - Because of the one-drop rule, many blacks throughout U.S. history have looked white enough to “pass” as white; this has resulted in a large percentage of whites with black ancestry
  - New immigrant groups, e.g., Irish, Slavs, have been successful in becoming white
- Census categories
  - Races: American Indian or Alaska Native, Asian, Black or African American, Native Hawaiian or Other Pacific Islander; White, Some other race
  - Ethnic category: Hispanic or Latino
